SECTION I—DEPARTMENTAL OVERVIEW

1. MINISTERS' MESSAGES

Minister of Canadian Heritage,
Status of Women and Official
Languages

Ministre du Patrimoine canadien, de la Condition féminine et des
Langues officielles

Ottawa, Canada, K1A 0M5

As Minister of Canadian Heritage, Status of Women and Official Languages, I am pleased to present the Department of Canadian Heritage's 2008-2009 Report on Plans and Priorities.

Canadians have a rich and diverse cultural heritage thanks to the tremendous creative talent and contributions of dynamic communities across the country. The Department of Canadian Heritage promotes the arts and culture, official languages, multiculturalism, Aboriginal culture and heritage, Canadian identity, and sport, as well as our broadcasting, sound recording, publishing, film and interactive media industries. As this document illustrates, the Department supports initiatives that are at the very heart of what it means to be Canadian.

Canadian Heritage is supporting a number of celebrations across Canada, and one of the biggest priorities this year is our involvement in the celebrations for Québec City's 400th anniversary. There are few cities in America that can celebrate such a past. The Government of Canada is proud to be a partner in these festivities. From Newfoundland and Labrador to British Columbia, Canadians will join in this great celebration.

Moreover, as the Minister responsible for Official Languages, I am pleased our country has two official languages that are assets for our future, both for individuals and society as a whole. During the next fiscal year, my Department will continue to promote French and English and encourage the growth of official-language minority communities. As well, the Official Languages Secretariat is coordinating the efforts of departments, agencies, and other federal institutions to ensure that all of their programs and policies take into account the requirement of linguistic duality. To this end, I will build on the consultations on linguistic duality and official languages that Bernard Lord has led throughout the country on my behalf to develop an effective strategy and to follow up on the Action Plan for Official Languages.

The Government of Canada is committed to promoting Canadian values and achievements, and engaging citizens of all backgrounds in community life, and many of the activities that Canadian Heritage supports encourage community engagement. For example, we announced annual funding of $30 million for ongoing support of local arts and heritage festivals and community anniversaries, including the creation of the Building Communities Through Arts and Heritage program. We are working closely with representatives from different levels of government, the private sector, and the cultural scene to ensure that Canadians have access to high-quality arts and culture in their regions.

Following the official apology that Prime Minister Harper offered in 2006 to Canadians of Chinese origin for the imposition of the Head Tax, Canadian Heritage continues to follow through on the commitment to make symbolic ex gratia payments to head-tax payers and conjugal partners of now deceased head-tax payers. As well, we will support programs that educate Canadians about chapters in our history such as this one, which have had an impact on our diverse communities.

Sport participation and excellence in sport bring many benefits to our communities and call for investments in a sport system that positions Canadians to shine athletically on the international stage and create pride at home. The Government of Canada is committed to strengthening Canadians' participation in sport, both in our communities and at the highest level, and we provide more than $140 million annually to this end.

Canada is an inclusive society built on intercultural understanding and citizen participation. By providing Canadians with opportunities to express and share their diverse cultural experiences with each other and the world, Canadian Heritage helps increase participation in community life and promote international understanding of our unique cultural heritage. These efforts play an important role in strengthening the Canadian federation and ensuring that Canada is a proud and sovereign nation.

I am proud to be working with my colleagues, the Minister of International Trade and Minister for the Pacific Gateway and the Vancouver-Whistler Olympics, the Secretary of State (Foreign Affairs and International Trade) (Sport), and the Secretary of State (Multiculturalism and Canadian Identity). As the work plan outlined in this Report illustrates, the Department of Canadian Heritage will continue to promote our cultural heritage and encourage Canadians to participate in the life of their communities and in Canadian society.

Josée Verner

Message from the Minister of International Trade and Minister for the Pacific Gateway and the Vancouver-Whistler Olympics

Canada is now in the two-year countdown to hosting the 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games, and the excitement continues to build.

Ranking among the world's largest and most significant international events, the Olympic and Paralympic Games require tremendous planning and coordination. The Government of Canada is pleased to be working in partnership with the Government of British Columbia, the City of Vancouver, the Resort Municipality of Whistler, the Vancouver Organizing Committee, the Canadian Olympic Committee, the Canadian Paralympic Committee, and the Four Host First Nations Society to ensure that we are ready when the Games begin in February 2010.

Our Government has committed $597 million to ensure the successful delivery of the 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games. This includes funding for sport and event venues; a Legacy Endowment Fund that provides operational funding for sporting venues which will be available beyond 2010; federal essential services in areas such as health, immigration, and meteorology; support for the Four Host First Nations Society; a Live Sites Program through which Vancouver and Whistler residents and visitors will be able to share in the excitement of the Games experience; and the operating costs of the Paralympic Games.

I am proud to report that the Whistler venues have been officially opened on time and within budget. These wonderful facilities are available for training two years ahead of the big event, which means our athletes will be ready for world-class performances. The venues will also serve as an important legacy for Canadians long after the Games are over.

As Minister of International Trade and Minister for the Pacific Gateway and the Vancouver-Whistler Olympics, I am pleased to provide Canadians with an outline of the work planned for the 2008-2009 fiscal year to ensure that the 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games will be a huge success.

3. RAISON D'ÊTRE

The Department of Canadian Heritage is responsible for formulating policies and delivering programs that help all Canadians to participate in their shared cultural and civic life. It is Canada's culture ministry, created in 1993 from components of former departments responsible for communications, national health and welfare, multiculturalism and citizenship, and the environment, as well as the Secretary of State.

The Department's legislative mandate is set out in the Department of Canadian Heritage Act, which offers an extensive but not exhaustive list of responsibilities for the Minister under the general heading of "Canadian identity and values, cultural development, and heritage." The Department oversees the administration of a large set of governing legislation, notably: the Broadcasting Act, the Copyright Act (shared with Industry Canada), the Canadian Multiculturalism Act, the Official Languages Act (Part VII), the Museums Act, the Cultural Property Export and Import Act, the Status of the Artist Act, and the Physical Activity and Sport Act (shared with Health Canada). Canadian Heritage is specifically responsible for the formulation and implementation of policy related to multiculturalism, official languages, state ceremonial and protocol, Canadian symbols, and the formulation of cultural policy related to copyright, foreign investment, and broadcasting.

The Department's main activities involve funding community and other third party organizations with a view to promoting the benefits of culture, identity, and sport for Canadians. In pursuing its mission "toward a more cohesive and creative Canada," the Department works within a framework headed by two strategic outcomes:

- Strategic Outcome 1: Canadians express and share their diverse cultural experiences with each other and the world. The Department helps to ensure that Canadians can express their creativity, showcase their talents, and share their diverse experiences via the arts, heritage institutions, cultural industries, and sport activities, both professional and amateur. To achieve this outcome, the Department enacts policies and programs that seek to create an environment where Canada's diverse voices and distinctive accent on liberal democratic values can be strengthened and shared, both at home and abroad.
- Strategic Outcome 2: Canada is an inclusive society built on intercultural understanding and citizen participation. The Department seeks to respond both to certain challenges to cohesion and to the many creative opportunities that come with an increasingly diverse social fabric. To achieve this outcome, the Department provides programming in support of socio-economic inclusion for disadvantaged groups such as off-reserve Aboriginal people and official language minority communities, but also exchange and dialogue on shared citizenship values between Canadians of all origins and backgrounds.

Canadian Heritage's two strategic outcomes are linked in the Government of Canada's overall strategic framework to the spending area "Social Affairs." For more information, see Canada's Performance Report 2006-07 at <http://www.tbs-sct.gc.ca/reports-rapports/cp-rc/2006-2007/cp-rctb-eng.asp> and Table 1 in Section III of this report.

- Strategic Outcome 1 is linked to a sub-area of Government spending described as “A vibrant Canadian culture and heritage.” Its performance indicator is participation in cultural and heritage activities.
- Strategic Outcome 2 is linked to the sub-area “Diverse society that promotes linguistic duality and social inclusion.” Its four performance indicators are: attitudes toward diversity; attitudes toward linguistic duality; volunteerism; and political participation.

More broadly, Canadian Heritage makes a strong contribution to Government of Canada social, economic, and international policy through its activities in support of dynamic cultural industries, world-class cultural institutions, and healthy communities. The Department’s outcomes do much to create value and quality of life for Canadians, while attracting talent, investment, and tourism to Canada from around the world.

4. ORGANIZATIONAL INFORMATION

Mandate, Roles and Responsibilities

The Department of Canadian Heritage is responsible for the Government of Canada’s role with respect to arts, culture, sport, heritage and citizen participation.

- the arts, including cultural aspects of the status of the artist;
- cultural heritage and industries, including performing arts, visual and audio-visual arts, publishing, sound recording, film, video and literature;
- broadcasting, except in respect of spectrum management and the technical aspects of broadcasting;
- the formulation of cultural policy, including the formulation of cultural policy as it relates to foreign investment and copyright;
- the conservation, exportation and importation of cultural property;

- the advancement of the equality of status and use of English and French and the enhancement and development of the English and French linguistic minority communities in Canada;
- the promotion of a greater understanding of human rights, fundamental freedoms and related values;
- multiculturalism; and
- state ceremonial and Canadian symbols.

☞ The Department of Canadian Heritage Act also states that in exercising the powers and performing the duties and functions assigned to the Minister, the Minister shall initiate, recommend, coordinate, implement and promote national policies, projects and programs with respect to Canadian identity and values, cultural development and heritage. The Minister may enter into agreements with the government of any province or any agency thereof.

Other statutes, listed in Appendix C, also fall under the Department's responsibility in whole or in part.

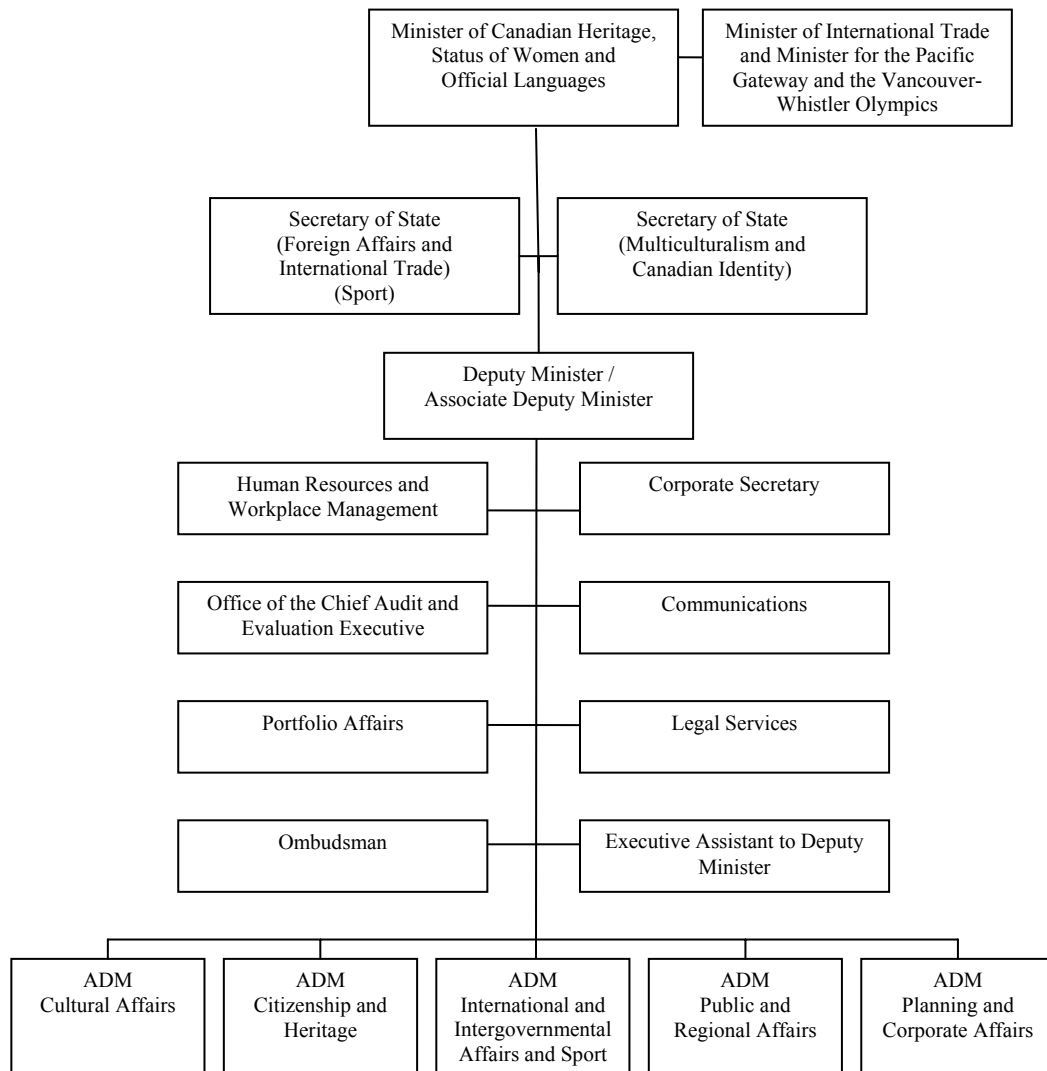

Organizational Structure

The Minister of Canadian Heritage, Status of Women and Official Languages is responsible before Parliament for the Department. The Minister is assisted by the Minister of International Trade and Minister for the Pacific Gateway and the Vancouver-Whistler Olympics, by the Secretary of State, Foreign Affairs and International Trade (Sport) and the Secretary of State, Multiculturalism and Canadian Identity.

The Deputy Minister of Canadian Heritage supports the Ministers and the Secretaries of State in the Department's overall orientation. The Deputy Minister and Associate Deputy Minister are jointly responsible for achieving the Department's strategic outcomes with the support of the Assistant Deputy Ministers and other departmental staff which are located in the National Capital region and throughout Canada as well as in few locations outside the country.

Organizational Structure of the Department of Canadian Heritage

2008-09

(ADM=Assistant Deputy Minister)

Within the Department, seven core functions report to the Deputy Minister:

- Human Resources and Workplace Management is responsible for getting the right people in the right jobs at the right time by promoting a culture that supports performance, learning and innovation, and ensuring that employees feel valued, safe, and engaged; it also provides critical infrastructure to the entire Department.
- The Corporate Secretariat is responsible for: Access to Information and Privacy Secretariat; Executive Services Secretariat; Ministerial Liaison Office; Parliamentary and Regulatory Affairs; Office of the Corporate Secretary; and Planning and Resource Management (which includes Minister, Secretaries of State and Executive Offices).

- Portfolio Affairs integrates policy, planning, reporting, financial management, central agencies coordination, appointments, governance and communications issues relative to the Canadian Heritage Portfolio organizations.
- Legal Services is the principal source of legal services and advice for the Department.
- The Ombudsman is a neutral party who provides all employees at all levels with confidential, informal, and impartial support; in addition, the Canadian Heritage Ombudsman is the designated Senior Integrity Officer who is responsible for the implementation of the Public Servants Disclosure Protection Act.
- The Office of the Chief Audit and Evaluation Executive provides the Department with independent and neutral evaluation, assurances and recipient compliance audit services; it is also the focal point for integrated risk management expertise and provides secretariat support to committees for evaluation and to the external members of the Departmental Audit Committee.
- The Communications Branch delivers professional and strategic services to ensure that communications across the Department are timely, well coordinated, effectively managed, and responsive to the diverse needs of the public that the organization serves.

It should be noted that in 2007, Public Affairs and Communications became Public and Regional Affairs as the Communications Branch now reports directly to the Deputy Minister. Also as of 2007, the Corporate Review Branch was repositioned to report directly to the Deputy Minister, in accordance with the new Internal Audit Policy and the forthcoming new Evaluation Policy. In 2008, its name was changed to the Office of the Chief Audit and Evaluation Executive.

The Department has five sectors each headed by an Assistant Deputy Minister (ADM). These sectors develop and implement policies, programs and initiatives aimed at achieving the Department's strategic outcomes.

Governance Model

Departmental governance is an important element of the Management Accountability Framework which sets out expectations for good management. An overview of the Department of Canadian Heritage's internal governance structure is therefore provided in this report.

Over the past year, changes have been made to the Department's governance structure. In part, these changes are in response to the Federal Accountability Act, passed in December 2006, and are designed to strengthen accountability and management of the department. The Department's internal governance structure consists of three levels.

Management Level 1: The Decision-making Committees

- The Executive Committee is the Department's senior decision-making committee. It acts as a "board of directors", responsible for overall governance, strategic direction and decision-making in support of the Deputy Minister.
- As part of the implementation of the new Internal Audit Policy, the audit function reports directly to the Deputy Minister since July 11, 2007. The Departmental Audit Committee is being created and implemented in response to the requirements of the Policy. This committee will provide the Deputy Minister with independent, neutral and objective advice on the state of risk management, internal controls and governance processes.

Management Level 2: The Operational Committees (Chaired by the Deputy Minister or by the Associate Deputy Minister)

- The Communications and Coordination Committee is a forum for discussion on future communications and departmental events programming.
- The Strategic Policy and Planning Committee. Following the creation of the Departmental Audit Committee, and in response to requirements of the revised Government of Canada Evaluation Policy, a new integrated Strategic Policy, Planning and Evaluation Committee, chaired by the Deputy Minister, is being created and will be operational in early 2008-09. This Committee will act as a catalyst in developing a strategic vision by linking policies, programs and evaluations, with a view to achieving the Department's strategic outcomes. The Operations and Management Committee is responsible for reviewing processes and deciding how to implement operational and management strategies.

Management Level 3: The Advisory Committees

- The Policy Committee provides advice on policy development and reports to the Strategic Policy, Planning and Evaluation Committee.
- A new Integrated Planning Committee was created in April 2007 to provide advice to senior level committees with respect to the efficient delivery of the Department's mandate. A risk management dimension has been integrated within the work of this Committee.
- The Human Resources Advisory Committee, the Finance Committee, the Information Management and Information Technology (IM/IT) Committee, the Program Management and Service Delivery Committee and the Legal Services Planning and Priorities Committee all report on their respective areas of responsibility to the Operations and Management Committee.

A range of networks, forums and other committees allow directors general, directors, middle management, senior officers and employees to exchange information with departmental colleagues, based on shared expertise or management responsibilities.

This committee structure and the Department's management structure are designed to strengthen governance and help the Department be more proactive on the Government's management and policy program. The model enhances overall consistency as well as the transparency of the decision-making process, to ensure progress toward achievement of the Department's strategic outcomes.

Role of the Regions

In addition to its headquarters in Gatineau, Quebec, the Department connects with Canadians through five regional offices and 22 points of service across Canada, as well as through its Web site. These offices serve a wide range of client organizations at the community-level by managing certain grants and contributions programs.

In 2008-09, grants and contributions will again represent more than 80 % of total departmental spending. Regions play an important role in delivering programs. While the management and delivery of these grants and contributions programs form the core of regional work, regional employees also provide many more services. For instance, they provide outreach and communications support for Ministers' and Secretaries of State's visits in the regions and for major events and thematic days (e.g. Canada Games, local Canada Day events, activities for March 21 Anti-Racism Day). They also provide strategic analysis and advice for the development of policies and programs, and help build partnerships with other federal departments, other orders of government, and public institutions.

Regional offices help the Department ensure that its programs and services are effective and locally relevant, that its policies respond to the needs and concerns of Canadians, and that communications efforts are well targeted and the ministers well-supported.

Portfolio

The Canadian Heritage Portfolio plays a central role in supporting cultural and civic activities in Canada. It is comprised of the Department (including the Canadian Conservation Institute and the Canadian Heritage Information Network) and 19 other organizations – agencies, Crown corporations, and a Board – that operate in the areas of Audio-visual, Heritage, Arts, Human Rights, and Public Service Human Resources.

While these organizations are outside the Department's direct governance structure, the Minister of Canadian Heritage is responsible for ensuring that the Portfolio agencies and Crown corporations support Government of Canada priorities. The agencies in the Portfolio produce an individual Report on Plans and Priorities. The Canadian Heritage Portfolio Crown corporations prepare corporate plans, the summaries of which are tabled in Parliament or are subject to the accountability requirements of their enabling legislation.

The following regroups these organizations by thematic areas and provides a brief description of each organization.

5. PROGRAM ACTIVITY ARCHITECTURE

Introduction

The Program Activity Architecture (PAA) is a structured inventory of the Department of Canadian Heritage's programs. These programs are arranged in a hierarchical manner to depict the logical relationship between each program activity, its sub- and sub-sub-program activity level and the Department's Strategic Outcomes to which they contribute. In short, the PAA serves to create an overview of how the Department's programs and activities are linked and how their expected results are organized to contribute to achieving the Department's mandate and Strategic Outcomes. The PAA provides a skeleton structure to which financial and non-financial performance information are linked.

The Program Activity Architecture is a major component of the larger Management, Resources and Results Structure (MRRS). A complete MRRS includes strategic outcomes, the PAA, the financial and non-financial information for each element of the PAA, and the departmental governance structure.

Explanation of Changes to the Department of Canadian Heritage's Program Activity Architecture

In response to the Treasury Board Secretariat (TBS) requirements regarding full implementation of the Management, Resources and Results Structure Policy (MRRS), the Department of Canadian Heritage made some changes to its Program Activity Architecture (PAA) officially approved in June 2005. The 2005 PAA contained two Strategic Outcomes and seven Program Activities. In April 2007, minor changes were made to reflect changes to departmental programs. Minor editorial changes were also made to the description of some Program Activities. Internal Services was added as a separate Program Activity as per TBS requirements. These revisions come into effect on April 1, 2008.

Canadian Heritage also undertook a comprehensive and substantive renewal of its PAA and related Performance Measurement Framework (PMF) which will come into effect on April 1, 2009 following Treasury Board approval. The revised PAA and PMF address comments and suggestions made by the Treasury Board Secretariat in the Round IV Management Accountability Framework Assessment. In 2008-09, Canadian Heritage will focus its efforts on the implementation of these revised management tools.

The following table reflects the main changes from the 2005 PAA to the 2008 PAA.

The Department of Canadian Heritage's Program Activity Architecture (effective as of April 1, 2008) is anchored by two Strategic Outcomes:

- Canadians express and share their diverse cultural experiences with each other and the world.
- Canada is an inclusive society built on intercultural understanding and citizen participation.

These two Strategic Outcomes are supported by seven Program Activities:

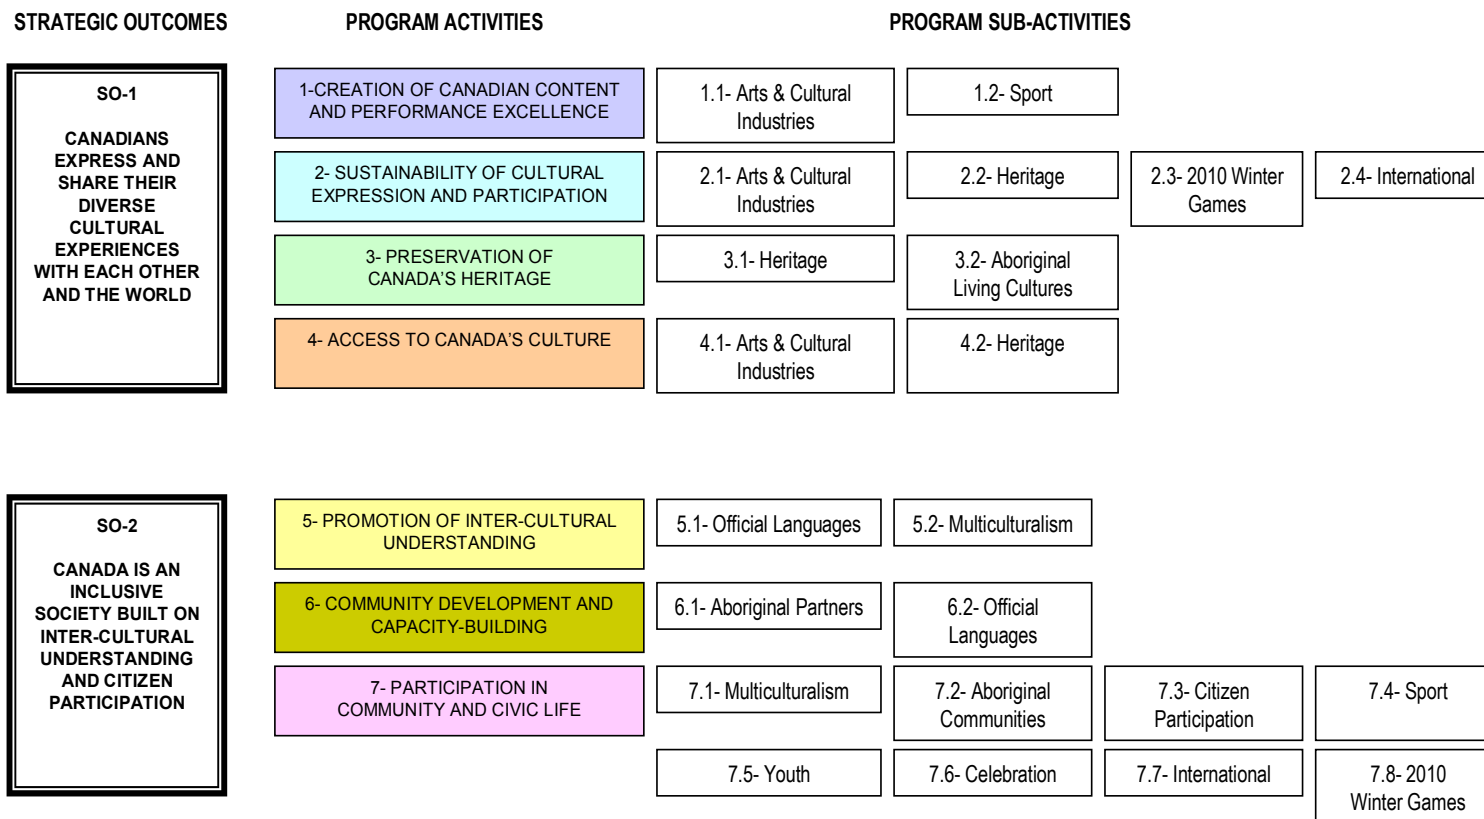

- Creation of Canadian content and performance excellence.
- Sustainability of cultural expression and participation.

8.3 Departmental Priorities

Priority	Type
1. Adapting Cultural Policy to Changing Technology and a Global Marketplace.	Previously committed.
2. Promoting Canada Through Community Engagement and Major Events.	New.
3. Delivering New Support for Official Languages.	New.
4. Investing in Canadian Sport.	Previously committed.
5. Strengthening Management Practices.	Ongoing.

Priority 1: Adapting Cultural Policy to Changing Technology and a Global Marketplace

The October 2007 Speech from the Throne noted the Government of Canada's commitment to improve the protection of cultural and intellectual property rights, including copyright reform, thus ensuring that cultural policy is adapting to changing technology and a global marketplace. Responsive cultural policy helps secure a space for Canadian voices nationally and internationally, and furthers the Government's desire to create a national environment that encourages "the capacity of Canadians to (...) build an even stronger Canada, striving for excellence (...) with growing confidence that they can make a difference at home and in the world" (Speech from the Throne 2006).

Priority 2: Promoting Canada Through Community Engagement and Major Events

2008 is an important year for the promotion of Canada as the country will celebrate several major events such as the 400th anniversary of the founding of Québec City, the 250th anniversary of the establishment of Nova Scotia's representative assembly, and the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Crown Colony of British Columbia. The promotion of Canada also plays out in communities across the country, notably through recently funded local festivals and the expression and celebration of local arts and heritage.

Priority 3: Delivering New Support for Official Languages

The 2006 Speech from the Throne recognized that “linguistic duality is a tremendous asset for the country,” while Budget 2007 announced significant funding dedicated to supporting official language minority communities and promoting linguistic duality, as well as for events surrounding the 400th anniversary of Québec City.

Priority 4: Investing in Canadian Sport

Canada's achievements as a sporting nation, with the excellence of its athletes recognized in national and international competitions, contribute to the strength of the Canadian identity as well as to the economic, social, and cultural fabric of the nation. Recognizing this, the Government has provided significant funding for the 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games while also supporting community sport participation, athletic development and excellence in winter sports.

Priority 5: Strengthening Management Practices

The Department is reviewing and continually adjusting its corporate management infrastructure and its governance structure to respond to new requirements regarding results-based management, comptrollership, risk management, internal audit and evaluation, service delivery, and public service modernization. Extensive redesign of the Department's Program Activity Architecture (PAA) and Performance Measurement Framework (PMF) is also currently under way, to further enhance governance and accountability through informed and transparent policy development, decision-making and risk management.

9. CONTEXT — CANADIAN HERITAGE PLANS AND PRIORITIES: OPERATING ENVIRONMENT

The Department of Canadian Heritage encourages access to and participation in our country's cultural and civic life. The Department delivers over 60 programs, nine of which are delivered in conjunction with the regions. These programs support Canadians in sharing their cultural experiences with each other and with the world, and in living in an inclusive society based on intercultural understanding and citizen participation.

The Department provides financial assistance through grants and contributions, directly or indirectly, to individuals, institutions, community organizations, not-for-profit organizations and other levels of government. The Department has established and closely adheres to a Grants and Contributions Management Policy, in accordance with Treasury Board policies, founded on principles of sound justification, reasonable analysis, and accountability. Programs are managed in accordance with a legislative and strategic framework that encompasses the Financial Administration Act, the Official Languages Act, and Treasury Board Secretariat policies such as the Policy on Transfer Payments, the Policy on Payables at Year-End, and the Official Languages Policy Framework.

The Department also plays an important role in developing and implementing innovative policy options that help to ensure its responses to public policy issues are relevant to Canadians.

The Department works closely with the Canadian Heritage Portfolio to implement a coherent and integrated perspective on government priorities and policy objectives and to support cultural and civic participation in Canada. Key areas of Portfolio cooperation include heritage, audio-visual, arts, and human rights. The Department also facilitates reporting to Parliament for the human resources organizations in the Portfolio.

The Department and Portfolio operate in a context of enhanced accountability, with an emphasis on value for money that is consistent with significant new Government measures to ensure financial responsibility and public sector integrity.

Corporate Risks

The Department of Canadian Heritage takes an integrated approach to risk management across the organization. The Department has developed a Corporate Risk Profile that identifies key risk management themes, notably: 1) Practicing sound management and stewardship; 2) Demonstrating program results; and 3) Effective and values-based human resource management.

These themes reflect an emphasis on horizontal management priorities which provide a solid foundation for program and policy functions and give support to the Government of Canada commitment to improve accountability and achieve results. The themes derive from horizontal analysis of past audit and evaluation studies as well as from the findings of the most recent assessment of practice against the Treasury Board Secretariat's Management Accountability Framework. The Corporate Risk Profile notes that transfer payments are a significant feature of the Department and that the risk associated with the management of transfer payment programs represents an area that requires ongoing management attention and concerted efforts. In addition, the Department provides much of its support through third party delivery systems, and through regional points of service, and must manage the potential risk in these systems appropriately. In order to address these corporate risks, the Department is making the strengthening of management practices one of the five priorities outlined in the Report on Plans and Priorities 2008-09 as well as the subject of several key initiatives within that priority.

ENVIRONMENTAL SCAN: INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL FACTORS

The Department of Canadian Heritage continually monitors both immediate environmental changes and the broad, long-term trends that are shaping cultural participation, expression and consumption. The findings of this year's environmental scans include important observations on social, technological and economic trends that are affecting Canada's cultural sector.

Demographic Trends

Aging society

Canada's demographic makeup and social organization is changing. The Canada of the future will be quite different than the one of previous generations. Over 80% of Canadians now live in urban areas and, like other industrialized nations, Canada is experiencing a "greying" of its population. In 2006, the 65-and-over population made up a record 13.7% of the total population in Canada. The proportion of the population under 15 years of age fell to 17.7%, its lowest level ever.

Diversity

Canada is an increasingly diverse country. Canada's 32 million inhabitants reflect a very diverse cultural, ethnic and linguistic make-up. Approximately 225 000 immigrants a year from all parts of the globe continue to choose Canada, drawn by its quality of life and its reputation as an open and peaceful society that welcomes newcomers and values diversity. Immigration accounted for about two thirds of the demographic increase in 2006-07. Projections show that by 2017, visible minorities may account for one in every five people in Canada, a trend confirmed by the 2006 Census. Canada is also becoming much more multilingual. Results of the 2006 Census indicate that over 200 languages are spoken in Canada, and 20% of Canadians identified their mother tongue as being other than English or French.

Official-language minority communities throughout the country are an integral part of Canada's identity. According to the 2006 Census, the number of Francophones in Canada living outside Quebec whose first official language is French has remained relatively stable, with a slight increase – 997 000 individuals compared to 988 000 in 2001. For the first time since 1976, the proportion of people in Quebec whose first official language is English has increased, from 12.9% to 13.4%. Moreover, between 2001 and 2006, knowledge of French has increased among Anglophones from 9.0% to 9.4%, and among allophones from 11.8% to 12.1%.

In 2006, the number of people who self-identified as Aboriginal reached 1 172 790, with 54% of Aboriginal Canadians living in urban areas. The Aboriginal population is also younger than the rest of the Canadian population. There are nearly twice as many Aboriginal children under the age of four as compared with non-Aboriginals and the median age for Aboriginal people is 27 years old as compared to 40 for non-Aboriginals.

The Department of Canadian Heritage works within its mandate to address persistent challenges to social inclusion faced by certain minority population, be they ethno-cultural minorities, official language minority communities, or youth at risk. By fostering intercultural understanding and supporting participation in Canada's social and cultural life through arts, sport, and heritage, the Department's activities align with those of other departments and other orders of government to decrease the likelihood of social fragmentation, alienation, and exclusion.

Technological Trends

As of 2006, 70% of Canadian households were connected to the Internet, with 86% of those households using high-speed connections. The number of Canadians who report having used the Internet to download music (31%), movies (5%) and television shows (4%), watch videos (29%) and television (6%), and listen to radio (22%) has increased in 2006 compared to 2005.¹

As new technologies permeate the content industries, the notion of "cultural products" is changing from fixed objects into something more fluid, flexible and increasingly difficult to define. At the same time, individual Canadians are playing an increasingly active role in cultural content production and expression. New technologies and social networking tools are permitting a greater range of citizens to generate their own cultural content and contribute to, and experience, new digital cultural spaces. While the transformations involved in this increasingly digital and networked environment are taking place at different rates and in different ways, overall, the business models that previously defined the creation, production and dissemination of cultural content products are changing.

It is important to note that the traditional ways that Canadians consume media have not been brought to an end by rapid changes in technology. Canadians are still watching television and listening to the radio, reading magazines and going to the movies. That said, the Department's findings show that the cultural content industries are in a period of transition.

The needs and interests of Canadians are also changing. From a content perspective, Canadians – as citizens and consumers – are seeking information and entertainment choices personalized to reflect their tastes and interests, and meet their individual needs. They want immediacy, they want mobility, they want to participate – and they do not distinguish among platforms. Growing expectations of instant and open access to content are altering attitudes around social interaction, sharing, copyright, and professional content. This transformation of the cultural experience puts the citizen at the centre and opens up new possibilities for collaboration with creators, new forms of engagement, and active participation in the cultural/creative environment. In the context of adapting cultural policy to a changing Canadian society and global marketplace, and in response to the October 2007 Speech of the

Throne, the Department will continue to work with Industry Canada to review the Canadian copyright regime and respond to changing domestic and international environments.

Economic Trends

Overall, Canada's economic performance has been rated as relatively strong, and the forecast is that it will continue to make gains, even if at a slower pace than in previous months. However, the high value of the Canadian dollar impacts areas like foreign location shooting and tourism, which are significant cultural exports. Furthermore, the effects of the economic uncertainty in the United States and union strikes in the American entertainment industry are being felt in the Canadian content production, distribution, and marketing chains. Fragmented audiences and changing consumption habits are affecting advertising revenues, a traditional source of revenue for the cultural industries. These industries are also re-imagining their business models in light of increasingly globalized value network and flows of capital and investment.

The Department will continue to monitor economic trends and their impacts on the cultural sector in order to find the appropriate balance of support for, and regulation of, these industries for the economic health of the sector but also for the social and cultural benefit of Canadians.

Strategic Review

In 2007, the Department of Canadian Heritage conducted an in-depth review of the funding, relevance and performance of all its programs and spending to ensure results and value for money from programs that are a priority for Canadians. The results of this Strategic Review were submitted to Treasury Board in fall of 2007, for subsequent review by Cabinet. The results of this Review will be reflected in future reporting to Parliament.

DEPARTMENT OF CANADIAN HERITAGE STRATEGIC OUTCOMES AND PRIORITIES

The Department of Canadian Heritage has a Program Activity Architecture that sets out the key Strategic Outcomes on which programs and activities of the Department are focused.

The Department's two inter-related Strategic Outcomes are as follows: Canadians express and share their diverse cultural experiences with each other and the world, and, Canada is an inclusive society built on inter-cultural understanding and citizen participation.

These Strategic Outcomes are interdependent and mutually reinforcing in that creative expression across diversity helps build an inclusive, cohesive, and self-confident country. Similarly, better inclusion and participation, along with openness to diversity, increase awareness and appreciation of the country's values and history while generating new ideas in support of innovation and creativity.

These strategic outcomes and related program activities are aligned with Government of Canada priorities as expressed in a number of key Government of Canada documents, such as the Speech from the Throne, the Budget, and Canada's Performance Report, an annual report to Parliament prepared by Treasury Board Secretariat. Out of the 13 Government of Canada's strategic outcomes identified in Canada's Performance Report 2006-07, two are specifically related to Canadian Heritage: 1) a vibrant Canadian culture and heritage, and 2) a diverse society that promotes linguistic duality and social inclusion. A table showing how the Department's two Strategic Outcomes and related Program Activities align with these government-wide outcome areas over and above the ongoing delivery of its various programs and services can be found in Section III.

A number of announcements in Budget 2007 have impacted the Department, such as:

- Local culture: $30 million per year over two years to encourage Canadians to get involved in their communities through the expression, celebration, and preservation of local arts and heritage.
- Official Languages: $15 million per year over the next two years for official language minority communities.
- Heritage sports: $1.5 million over the next two years to establish a fund to foster participation in Canadian heritage sports such as three-down football and lacrosse.
- 2010 Winter Games: $11 million per year (over five years) in support of Canada's elite winter athletes, as well as tax relief in ways consistent with host-nation traditions in order to facilitate the operation of the Games.

In keeping with Canadian Heritage's mission and in light of the priorities expressed by the Government of Canada, the Department has added the following five priorities to the ongoing delivery of its various programs and services for 2008-09. These priorities, previously detailed in sub section 8.3, will contribute to the achievement of the Department's Strategic Outcomes as well as the two government-wide outcomes mentioned above.

Priority 1: Adapting Cultural Policy to Changing Technology and a Global Marketplace.

Priority 2: Promoting Canada through Community Engagement and Major Events.

Priority 3: Delivering New Support for Official Languages.

Priority 4: Investing in Canadian Sport.

Priority 5: Strengthening Management Practices.

In light of these priorities, the Department will focus on key initiatives that are presented below under the related departmental priority and with reference to the related Program Activities and Strategic Outcomes.

SECTION II—ANALYSIS OF PROGRAM ACTIVITIES BY STRATEGIC OUTCOME

Analysis of Program Activities by Strategic Outcome

Introduction

This Section presents information concerning the Program Activities and Key Initiatives related to the two Strategic Outcomes as outlined in the Department of Canadian Heritage Program Activity Architecture.

Financial and Human Resources information is provided for each Strategic Outcome and each Program Activity for the 3-year planning period.

For each Program Activity there is a certain number of key initiatives in accordance with the five priorities of the Department. A detailed outline of the Canadian Heritage Program Activity Architecture including Program Sub-Activities and Program Sub-Sub-activities (programs at the lowest level) is provided for each Strategic Outcome.

STRATEGIC OUTCOME 1	CANADIANS EXPRESS AND SHARE THEIR DIVERSE CULTURAL EXPERIENCES WITH EACH OTHER AND THE WORLD

Description of Strategic Outcome 1

The Department helps to ensure that Canadians can express their creativity, showcase their talents and share their stories and experiences through the arts, heritage institutions, cultural industries and sport activities. To achieve this outcome, the Department carries out policies and programs that support the environment needed to strengthen and share – both at home and abroad – Canada’s values and its diverse voices.

Description

Expression of culture starts with the creation of works and performance. Although excellence is what professional artists and high performance athletes strive for, this requires the development of a structure that provides support both domestically and internationally, at all levels of cultural and sport development. The Department of Canadian Heritage focuses on enabling creators to produce and athletes to perform by supporting the structure and cultural industries needed for high quality works and performances.

Planned Results and Performance Indicators

The Department expects two results by pursuing this first Program Activity: Canadian content reflective of Canada's diverse society is created and produced for domestic and international markets; and Canadians excel domestically and internationally in culture and sport.

Key Initiative 2: Responding to the Evolving Canadian Broadcasting Environment

Description

Digital technologies have played an important role for many years in the cultural sector, including the areas of music, news gathering, film and television, publishing and the arts. Recent technological advancements in capturing and compression technologies, computing power and storage have made the recording, duplication and storage of cultural products extremely easy and often much less expensive. It is the combination of these advances, the omnipresence of global digital networks, increasing broadband Internet access and adoption, and the development of inexpensive and easy-to-use software that have transformed the way in which cultural content is being created, distributed, consumed and experienced.

In recognition of these changes facing the Canadian broadcasting system, the Department has commissioned and completed a number of important studies and reports. These, as well as the Canadian Radio-Television Commission's (CRTC) report on the impacts of technological change on the Canadian broadcasting system as a whole, are serving to inform ongoing policy work to ensure up-to-date broadcasting policies and programs.

Planned Results and Performance Indicators

The Department will collaborate and leverage partnerships to identify, develop and implement action to ensure that the Canadian broadcasting system remains relevant in a global digital environment.

Milestones and Timeframe

2008-09

- Work with partners toward ensuring up-to-date broadcasting policy and programs.

Key Initiative 3: Adapting the Canadian Copyright Regime to Address Changing Domestic and International Challenges

Description

Copyright protection is the fundamental legal pillar on which the creation and distribution of cultural products is based. The cultural industries that depend on copyright protection — for example, music, film, software — contribute significantly to the growth of our Canadian economy. The Copyright Act aims to maintain a balance between recognizing the rights of creators and owners of works, and the distribution of, and access to, these works, in the public interest. Technological advances, the development of new business models, and nearly unlimited access to creative works give rise to new issues concerning the Act.

In 2008-09, the Department will draft amendments to the Copyright Act so that Canada can apply the copyright provisions set out in the two most recent World Intellectual Property Organization treaties and resolve issues related to technological advances and the Internet. For more information, visit: www.pch.gc.ca/progs/ac-ca/progs/pda-cpb/reform/index_e.cfm.

Planned Results and Performance Indicators

The new Act will provide sufficient copyright protection and fair compensation for copyright holders, promoting lawful access to works in accordance with international standards.

Description

Cultural life rests on the continued existence of an intricate network of institutions, not-for-profit organizations, corporations, volunteers, professionals and audiences. This network is both resilient – it relies on considerable dedication, experience and talent – and fragile. Some of the crucial elements of the chain are vulnerable to investment patterns, market failures, foreign competition, technological changes, labour strains and international trade rules and agreements. As an integral part of the network, the Department of Canadian Heritage fosters the sustainability of the many organizations, cultural industries, entrepreneurs, and artistic and athletic performance events comprising this rich ecosystem. It does so by assisting them to increase their ability to attract investment, achieve adequate copyright protection, present to Canadian audience, pursue international opportunities and build organizational partnerships.

Planned Results and Performance Indicators

The result of this program activity is vibrant cultural and sport sectors in which Canadian cultural expression and participation can thrive and remain relevant at home and abroad.

Key Initiative 1: Implementing Supplementary Funding to the Arts Presentation Canada Program for Professional Arts Festivals

Description

Arts Presentation Canada gives Canadians direct access to a variety of quality artistic experiences through financial assistance to arts festivals and presenters or the organizations that support them. Canadians will therefore have more access to artists' work from all regions of Canada that reflect its rich cultural diversity. Canadian communities in all regions will have the opportunity to participate in, and benefit from, the broadest possible range of professional artistic experiences.

Planned Results and Performance Indicators

The supplementary resources for the Arts Presentation Canada program are a targeted investment that will enable professional arts festivals to better fulfill their stated community engagement objectives. Professional arts festivals will receive enhanced support to deliver significant and demonstrable community engagement through:

- Programming that combines and complements paid admission events with free or low-cost events.
- Programming that engages local professional artists.
- Extending programming outreach to other communities.
- Initiatives that reach out to specific segments of the population (i.e., youth or other under-served populations).

Key Initiative 5: Moving Forward on the Canadian Museum for Human Rights

Description

The Canadian Museum for Human Rights will be the first new national museum to be established in 40 years. The significant contribution that will be made to the construction of the museum by the Friends Foundation, the Province of Manitoba, the City of Winnipeg and the Forks Renewal Corporation marks a new era in collaboration between governments and the private sector to achieve the realization of a cultural vision. By locating the museum in Winnipeg, the Government of Canada has affirmed its commitment to the principle that national cultural institutions belong to all Canadians.

In the museum's first year of existence, the new Board of Trustees will need to make major decisions about its future directions, including the architecture vision and the vision for the institution's public programming. In carrying out this responsibility, it will be able to draw on the work previously commissioned by the Friends of the Canadian Museum for Human Rights Foundation and the advice of the Advisory Committee established by the Minister of Canadian Heritage in 2007-08.

At the same time, staff will be recruited to lead the museum, to begin to prepare for its complex operations once it has been opened and to support the Board. During this recruitment phase, the Department of Canadian Heritage will continue to provide support to ensure that the new Board has the resources it needs in carrying out its responsibilities.

Planned Results and Performance Indicators

The planned results are a new national museum that will present the evolution of human rights, with special but not exclusive reference to Canada, in order to promote critical understanding, respect for others and dialogue. The planned results and milestones are dependent on the passage of legislation to establish the museum.

Planned Results

- The museum's Board of Trustees receives the support it requires to make major decisions that will advance the planning for the museum.
- Key senior staff for the museum are recruited.

Milestones and Timeframe

2008-09

- Board of Trustees is appointed.
- Director is appointed.
- Decisions are made with respect to the architectural and public programming vision. (Note: These decisions are the responsibility of the future Board of Trustees. The Department will provide transitional support as the new Crown corporation is launched but will not be responsible for reporting on results for the operation of the Corporation.)

Description

Access to Canada's culture can take a variety of forms for participants: reading, attending exhibitions or performances, learning through the Internet, listening to radio, watching films or television, visiting heritage sites, etc. The Department of Canadian Heritage helps to create the conditions for wide access and participation. The Department focuses on facilitating access to the wide array of cultural experiences, bridging challenges such as distance, community size, language and ethno-cultural diversity. The primary vehicles for engaging Canadians in cultural participation are arts activities, mass media, and heritage sites and events.

Planned Result and Performance Indicator

The Department’s efforts in this regard will yield an important result: Canadians have access to and participate in a diverse range of Canadian cultural experiences.

----------------------------	--

This sub-section presents information concerning the Program Activities and Key Initiatives relating to the second Strategic Outcome as outlined in the Department of Canadian Heritage Program Activity Architecture. It provides financial and human resources information for the 3-year planning period.

For each Program Activity there is a certain number on key initiatives in accordance with the five priorities of the Department.

Description of Strategic Outcome 2

The Department’s activities focus on inclusion and participation in Canadian life while reinforcing core values and shared citizenship. The Department also works to connect Canadians across their differences through inter-cultural exchange, helping to reduce the tensions that could otherwise divide us and to respond to both the challenges and opportunities of an increasingly diverse society. When Canadians come together in acceptance of their differences, cultural expression becomes richer in quality and quantity, new audiences can be reached, institutions can be more responsive and sustainable, and opportunities for excellence in all cultural spheres are maximized.

Description

The Department of Canadian Heritage fosters inter-cultural understanding by generating opportunities for Canadians to share experiences and learn about each other's cultures. One of the ways this is done is through the promotion of linguistic duality and of learning Canada's two official languages. The Department also supports initiatives that promote cross-cultural understanding within and between communities. With attention to the unique opportunities generated by sport activities in Canada, the Department promotes diversity as a means of enhancing inter-cultural experiences and understanding.

Planned Results and Performance Indicators

By promoting inter-cultural understanding, the Department expects to foster a society where Canadians interact across diverse communities and value the diversity and linguistic duality of Canadian society.

Key Initiative 13: Implementing New Support for Official Languages

Description

According to the 2006 Census, the number of Francophones (persons with French as their first official language spoken) in Canada living outside of Quebec is relatively stable at 997 000 people compared to 988 000 in 2001. For the first time since 1976, there has been an increase in the number of people in Quebec whose first official language is English, with 995 000 people compared to 919 000 in 2001, from 12.9% to 13.4% of the population of Quebec¹. The findings also show that linguistic retention of French among Francophones who speak French at home most often in minority communities, decreased slightly from 63% in 2001 to 62% in 2006. Furthermore, the knowledge of French increased between 2001 and 2006 from 9.0% to 9.4% among Anglophones in Canada and from 11.8% to 12.1% among allophones². The number of Canadians outside Quebec able to carry a conversation in French has increased from 2.4 million to 2.6 million overall.

Despite the relatively stable linguistic growth in past years, major challenges have yet to be overcome in order to develop living environments in the language of the minority. Despite the modest rise in the number of Francophones living in a minority situation, their share of the population decreased from 4.4% to 4.2% due to the arrival of immigrants, most of whom do not have French as their first official language spoken. The Survey on the Vitality of the Official-Language Minorities confirmed that the predominant use of French on a daily basis by French-speaking adults in Canada living outside of Quebec occurred only in some parts of New Brunswick and Ontario³.

¹ Statistics Canada (2007), First Official Language Spoken (7), Mother Tongue (10), Age Groups (17A) and Sex (3) for the Population of Canada, Provinces, Territories, Census Divisions and Census Subdivisions, 2006 Census, No. 97-555-XWE200603.

³ Statistics Canada (2007), Minorities Speak Up: Results of the Survey of the Vitality of Official-Language Minorities, No. 91-548-X, p.15, 20, 27, 30.

Particular attention must, therefore, be given to initiatives that support the daily use of the minority language and that target young people, the future of official-language communities. Few young people in majority communities who are learning English or French as a second language have an opportunity for tangible contact with the other language outside of school; such contact would give them a greater appreciation of the culture conveyed by the other language and improve their language spoken skills. In the Budget 2007, the Government of Canada announced $15 million per year in additional funds for 2007-08 and 2008-09 to support linguistic duality and the development of official-language minority communities. To follow-up on this commitment, additional funds have been provided in 2007-08, to support community areas and centers, cultural and extracurricular activities and other activities to promote linguistic duality, particularly for young people. Funding of new projects is expected in 2008-09.

Planned Results and Performance Indicators

Planned Result 1

- Increase the number of tangible opportunities for young members of official-language minority communities to live in their language on a daily basis.

Performance Indicators

- Quantity and quality of projects that target cultural and community programming activities.
- Number of community areas or centres promoting the use of the minority community language.

Planned Result 2

- Create opportunities for young Canadians to gain linguistic and cultural experiences in their second official language, outside of the classroom.

Performance Indicator

- Quantity and quality of projects focussed on activities that offer young Canadians linguistic experiences in their second official language, outside of the classroom.

Milestone and Timeframe

2008-09

- Call for proposals for 2008-09, granting of funds for 2008-09, and completion of projects are expected.

Description

An inclusive society means that all Canadians recognize and exercise their responsibilities to Canada and Canadian society. The Department of Canadian Heritage programs and activities contribute to this goal by helping to address some of the key impediments to community and civic participation. This is done through initiatives that educate Canadians about the country and their citizenship, both at home and abroad, while helping to educate the rest of the world about Canada. It is also achieved through the development of sport participation and supporting organizations that are built on volunteerism in communities. Youth programs generate opportunities and encourage participation. Targeted measures for ethno-cultural and ethno-racial communities assist these groups to more effectively participate into all aspects of Canadian life. Targeted measures for Aboriginal communities, including Aboriginal youth and women, support the participation of Aboriginal peoples and build upon Aboriginal cultures.

Planned Result and Performance Indicator

As a result of the activities that foster participation, Canadians will become more engaged in Canada's communities and civic life.

Communities and organizations across B.C. will stage various events to showcase the B.C.'s heritage, its communities, its arts and culture and the contributions of the Aboriginal and multicultural communities to the province's history and culture. These activities will create opportunities for citizens to participate and showcase the province's stories and successes and are meant to raise awareness and generate interest in the rest of Canada. British Columbia has requested to strike a collaborative partnership with the Government of Canada to support this anniversary celebration.

Description

In 2008, the Province of Nova Scotia will mark the 250th anniversary of the establishment of its representative assembly: the first representative government introduced in the colonies that would become Canada, and a key milestone in the birth of Canadian parliamentary democracy. This significant achievement will be highlighted by Democracy 250 which plans to implement a comprehensive year-long program of events, legacy projects and citizen engagement activities. One of the key objectives of Democracy 250 is to educate young Canadians on representative government, our parliamentary system, the importance of our democracy and the need for participation in our electoral process. In carrying out this primary objective, Democracy 250 hopes to reach out to youth as the next generation of voters and leaders and to positively impact democratic renewal and voter turnout. Nova Scotia has requested to strike a collaborative partnership with the Government of Canada to support this anniversary celebration.

Key Initiative 11: Developing Next Steps for the Community Historical Recognition Program and the National Historical Recognition Program

Description

This initiative responds to the Government of Canada's commitment to recognize the historical experiences of ethno-cultural communities impacted by wartime measures and/or immigration restrictions that are not consistent with the values held by Canadians today. It also relates to the Government of Canada's commitment to the Chinese-Canadian community and all Canadians to provide appropriate acknowledgment and redress related to the Chinese Head Tax.

Planned Results and Performance Indicators

The key result for the initiative is increased public awareness about multiculturalism and diversity by undertaking activities that recognize the experiences of ethno-cultural communities impacted by historical wartime measures and/or historical immigration restrictions. This will be achieved through the provision of symbolic ex gratia payments to those who were required to pay the Chinese Head Tax and to the conjugal partners of deceased Head Tax payers as well as through the establishment of a fund for community-based projects aimed at acknowledging these impacted communities; and the development of a National Historical Recognition Program to fund federal initiatives that will help to educate all Canadians, and particularly youth, about the history related to wartime measures and immigration restrictions.

Key Initiative 12: Moving Forward on the Global Centre for Pluralism

Description

On October 25, 2006, the Government of Canada signed a funding agreement with the Global Centre for Pluralism and, in March 2007, $30 million was provided for an endowment for this organization. Subsequently, on December 19, 2007, the Government concluded a lease agreement.

The Global Centre for Pluralism is a new not-for-profit, non-governmental organization that will address a global gap in institutions that research and teach about pluralism as a foundation for good governance, peace and human development. As a majority of the world's nations are comprised of diverse ethnic, cultural, linguistic and religious communities, Canada's cultural and linguistic diversity offers practical lessons in managing diversity, reducing potential conflict and fostering inclusion.

Table 2: Canadian Heritage Sustainable Development Strategy 2007-09
Summary of the Key Objectives of the Sustainable Development Strategy

The Department's Sustainable Development Strategy 2007-09 (SDS) focuses on ensuring that the environmental impacts of its decisions are understood, weighed and appropriately addressed. To this end, the SDS makes its first priority to institute effective governance structures and management measures, with a primary objective to strengthen decision-making and monitoring at Canadian Heritage in support of sustainable development. In addition, the SDS underscores the unique contribution that Canadian Heritage makes in the area of sustainable communities and in particular the essential role that culture plays. This is reflected in the second priority to improve the federal knowledge base about sustainable development and increase planning capacity to account for the cultural dimension of sustainable communities. Finally, the SDS advances previous departmental sustainable development strategies by furthering the ongoing commitment to integrate better environmental management in program and policy areas as well as in key operations.

Link to 2008-09 Priority

Program Activity 8 is linked to the following priority:

- Priority 5 – Strengthening Management Practices.

Key Initiatives Related to Internal Services and to Priority 5: Strengthening Management Practices

KEY INITIATIVE 16: Implementing Canadian Heritage Action Plan supporting Blue Ribbon Panel Conclusions

KEY INITIATIVE 17: Public Service Renewal

KEY INITIATIVE 18: Canadian Heritage Management Accountability Framework Action Plan

Over the years, the Department of Canadian Heritage has remained committed to the continuous improvement of its management practices. Ongoing investments in the Department's corporate infrastructure – according to modern management principles – have already enabled the Department to adapt to the major changes required by Treasury Board's policy renewal initiative, such as the introduction of new internal audit and evaluation policies, the implementation of the Management, Resources and Results Structure (MRRS) policy, etc. Canadian Heritage's commitment to management excellence also manifests itself by strategically supporting each element of the Management Accountability Framework (MAF) with concrete initiatives identified in its annual MAF Action Plan. Canadian Heritage has identified three key initiatives for 2008-09 designed to strengthen management practices in specific areas:

- Implementing recommendations stemming from the Report from the Independent Blue Ribbon Panel on Grant and Contribution programs – Approximately 80% of Canadian Heritage program resources are allocated in the form of a grant or a contribution to third party recipients.
- Supporting the Public Service Renewal Initiative – In his last annual report to the Prime Minister, the Clerk of the Privy Council himself identified this human resource initiative as a priority for Government.
- Supporting selected MAF elements – The MAF Round IV assessment identified four areas (results-based management, audit renewal, shared services and IM/IT and integrated risk management) with “opportunities for improvements.” This is where Canadian Heritage is focussing its energy.

Key Initiative 16: Implementing the Department of Canadian Heritage's Action Plan Supporting Blue Ribbon Panel Conclusions

Description

In June 2006, the President of the Treasury Board commissioned an independent Blue Ribbon Panel, “to recommend measures to make the delivery of grant and contribution programs more efficient while ensuring greater accountability.” In December 2006, the Blue Ribbon Panel submitted its final report entitled From Red Tape to Clear Results, and delivered 32 recommendations to help reform Grants and Contributions (Gs & Cs) practices throughout the federal public service. (For more information, see: <http://www.brp-gde.ca/> and http://www.tbs-sct.gc.ca/media/nr-cp/2007/0214_e.asp)

The Department of Canadian Heritage has a lead role to play in the federal response to Blue Ribbon Panel recommendations. As one of seven “vanguard” departments (those with significant Gs and Cs expertise and experience), the Department is undertaking a number of initiatives to bring about change, within the Department and at the federal level. (For more information, see: http://www.pch.gc.ca/pc-ch/mindep/sc-gc_e.cfm)

As a first step in the development of the Government of Canada's action plan to reform the administration of Gs and Cs, Treasury Board Secretariat worked with selected departments to examine business processes to identify opportunities for improved service and efficiencies.

The Canadian Heritage Blue Ribbon Panel Action Plan is in some ways "a snapshot in time" of efforts begun by the Department in 2003 to improve Gs and Cs contributions management. From the beginning, the theme was one of reasonable diligence: Attaining a better equilibrium between stewardship and service on the basis of risk. The recommendations of the Blue Ribbon Panel served to focus these efforts towards reducing controls, where risk allows, so as to reduce burden on clients and improve accountability in the use of public funds.

Key Initiative 17: Public Service Renewal

Description

The recommendations of the Advisory Committee on Public Service Renewal concluded that the Public Service needs to change to renew itself. In light of these recommendations, the Clerk of the Privy Council stated in his 14th Annual Report to the Prime Minister on the Public Service of Canada dated March 31, 2007:

We believe the overriding imperative for the Public Service today is to adapt to challenging new circumstances and to respond in innovative ways to the evolving needs of Canadians. Strong, values-based leadership, will be essential if Canada's Public Service is to renew itself.

Renewal is not only about bringing in and developing new people; it is equally a matter of valuing and developing the talent already in the ranks.

The Clerk thus identified for all government departments an action plan that outlines key results at the corporate level, as well as within individual organizations, to move his four priorities forward.

1. Planning: Improve human resources planning as part of integrated business planning.
2. Recruitment: Ensure that the Public Service can hire its share of the most qualified graduates in all fields, reflecting Canada's diversity and develop an approach to branding the Public Service of Canada that combines an overall identity with department-specific features.

3. Employee Development: Continuous learning for all employees is critical to organizational effectiveness and to individual capacity.
4. Enabling infrastructure: Build organizational capacity, including the capacity of the community of human resources professionals.

As with all Government of Canada departments, the Department of Canadian Heritage is held to continue in 2008-09 to deliver on the priority action items the Clerk of the Privy Council's Office issued in 2007. Results-based management is a life-cycle approach to management that integrates strategy, people, resources, processes and measurements to improve decision-making, transparency, and accountability. The approach focuses on achieving outcomes, implementing performance measurement, learning and changing, and reporting performance.

The Program Activity Architecture (PAA) and Performance Measurement Framework (PMF) are foundation pieces for results-based management. Over the past year, the department undertook renewal of its PAA and PMF to address shortcomings identified by the Treasury Board Secretariat via the Management Accountability Framework assessment, and by departmental managers and staff who have been working with the PAA and PMF since its inception. Component 1: Implementing the new Internal Audit Policy

Description

The new Policy on Internal Audit took effect on April 1, 2006. Departments have until April 1, 2009 to finalize this implementation. The policy aims at strengthening public sector accountability risk management, resource stewardship and governance by reorganizing and bolstering internal audit on a government-wide basis. The policy is designed to ensure that the internal audit and the audit committee provide the Deputy Minister with added assurance, independent from line managers, on risk management, control and governance processes. This added assurance will also be used to support the Comptroller General report to Treasury Board on the state of risk management, control and governance processes across the Government. To ensure the real and perceived independence of the internal audit function, departments are required to create independent Departmental Audit Committee (DAC), which includes a majority of members drawn from outside the federal public service, and to provide organizational independence to the Chief Audit Executive who leads the internal audit function. Deputy Ministers, on the other hand, remain fully responsible for the adequacy of internal audit coverage in their department. The Department anticipates that it will be able to successfully implement the new Policy on Internal Audit by April 1, 2009 as identified in the policy.

Planned Results and Performance Indicators
